Author's Notes for Black and White: I was inspired to write Black and White, a novel about two Long Island City High School basketball stars and best friends who thought they'd "put all that racial crap behind us till we were almost like real blood-brothers," by several very real experiences in New York City. From 1992-1998, I taught adolescents awaiting trial on Rikers Island to read and write.

Dickens and Collins at once took to each other and a friendship began which lasted until Dickens's death in 1870. Forster, in his 1873 biography of Dickens, wrote, in one of his few references to Collins in the book, that 'Wilkie Collins became for all the rest of the life of Dickens one of his dearest and most valued friends.'
