Women Without Men is a short novel made up of stories about five women who come together in a house with a garden in Karaj, outside Tehran. They include a wealthy middle-class wife and a prostitute, but differ just as much in temperament as in background. Parsipur's stories involve the challenges women face in trying to live without men in Iran, featuring a debate about whether virginity is a ...

The complete review's Review: . Women without Men describes the very different lives and fates of several women, all of which eventually intersect in a house and garden in Karaj, near Tehran. Men figure in these women's lives, but largely as an absence or a negative. Some of the male-female relationships are failed ones, but beyond that Parsipur describes a world in which there are fundamental ...
