Why I Write George Orwell

From a very early age, perhaps the age of five or six, I knew that when I grew up I should be a writer. Between the ages of about seventeen and twenty-four I tried to abandon this idea, but I did so with the consciousness that I was outraging my true nature and that sooner or later I should have to settle down and write books.

George Orwell: Why I Write

"Why I Write" (1946) is an essay by George Orwell detailing his personal journey to becoming a writer. It was first published in the Summer 1946 edition of Gangrel. The editors of this magazine, J.B. Pick and Charles Neil, had asked a selection of writers to explain why they write.

Replay to Hanoch – You’ve completely, I presume deliberately, missed his point. Did you ignore all the times he deplored Stalin? “the lesser of two evils” he completely made clear, and I’m not sure why you’re using his own opinion that centralised government diminishes individual power as if it was your original thought – that was the whole warning of this piece!
