I'm a hardcore sci-fi fan and I've read a few great sci-fi books by now. I was really intrigued by the plot of the book so I bought it and even the introduction and middle part was awesome, though the entire thing didn't have much of fiction in it except for the constant ufo presence.

Since reading his previous novel, Noah's Ark, it is evident that Andrew has matured as a writer. Vessel has come cracking description segments. The scenes on the ISS are unnerving as the conditions come across as cramped and awkward, bordering on claustrophobic.

"Vessel" by Andrew J. Morgan, audiobook narrated by Victor Bevine, appears to be a blending of various genres and sub genres such as: science fiction, first contact, detective procedural, and government conspiracy in a single well-written action-packed thriller. The book includes aliens, life, death, and a little bit of romance along the way.

Vessel is an ambitious story, which at times suffered from either a lack of planning or guess work when it came to research. Andrew creates a good foundation of realism in order to make the fantastical elements believable. I didn't enjoy the initial introduction to the abbreviations and jargon, especially in the opening scenes.
